OUR LEADERSHIP

PRESIDENTS LETTER

Dear Alumni,

I'm excited to share our Spring Report and highlight some of the progress our organization has made over the past few months. Inside, you'll find updates on the work our team has been doing and of how the organization continues to evolve:

For those I have yet to meet, my name is Damon Choy, and I've had the privilege of serving as President this past quarter. Ever since I've joined BAM, I've been blown away by the people who make this organization special. Members invest their time in helping each other improve, and I have found some of my greatest mentors and friends through this community. That culture is what allows BAM to thrive year after year, and above all, my hope is to preserve it.

This fall, we saw a record number of applicants, with 400 students applying to join. We welcomed 17 new members over both recruitment cycles. Beyond scaling our recruitment process, this quarter was refining some of our core initiatives to ensure BAM continues to grow. We introduced a more structured pitch process to foster in-depth, second-level thinking. We also modified our program to create stronger lineages between classes. The goal is to make mentorship more durable part of the BAM experience, both during membership and as students and beyond.

To our graduating seniors, thank you for the role you've played in building BAM into what it is today. The standards you've set will continue to shape the organization long after you graduate. I cannot wait to see the impact you all make in the years ahead, and I'm confident that the next generation of BAM members will continue building on the foundation you helped create:

I am beyond excited to lead this organization over the coming year. I want to express my gratitude to my fellow executive board for their continued support and fantastic work.

Best,
Damon Choy

RECRUITMENT

Recruitment Summary

BAM runs two recruitment cycles throughout the year in Fall and Winter quarter. Over the two cycles, BAM had more than 650 applicants, with a record breaking 40 in Fall. Throughout the process, the organization looks for students that show ambition; analytical abilities, and a passion for finance. We hope you

Application Timeline:

1) Information Session

Candidates attend our Information Session to learn more about what we do and have the chance to network with our members

3) Coffee Chats

Selected candidates attend a 2-hour behavioral round of interviews where we get to learn more about their experiences

5) Final Rounds

The final round is primarily technical testing market knowledge, fundamental finance concepts, and more

2) Application

Our application consists of resume and essay submission; we will review applications and send out coffee chat invites

4) Office Hours

Candidates that are selected for final rounds attend office hours to gain support for the technical aspects of the interview

TRAINING PROGRAM

FRESHMEN TRAINING

Winter Quarter

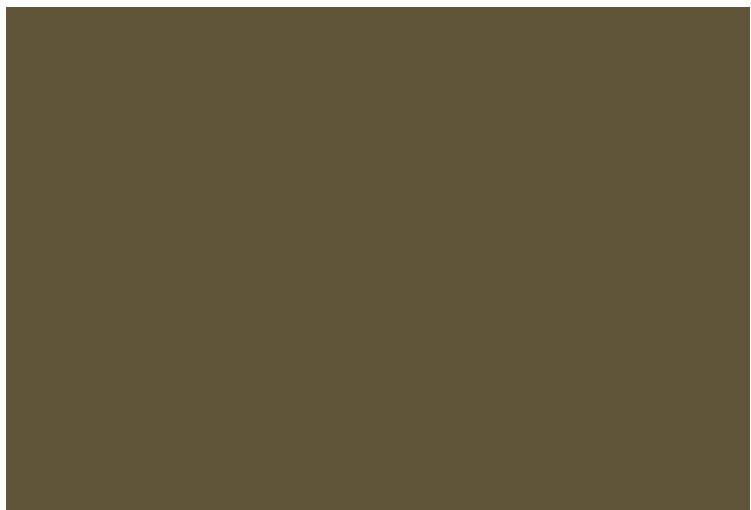

The first 5 weeks of technical training are focused on 4 core concepts: Accounting, Equity/Enterprise Value, and M&A, taught through guided lessons, quizzes, and mock interviews. Overview of the different careers within finance and how to land regional internships to build your resume for recruitment

Spring Quarter

Advanced concepts include merger models, LBO, advanced accounting, debt & debt-related technicals, case studies, and how to construct comprehensive stock and deal pitches. Freshman are required to coffee chat older members to learn more about their path in finance and gain clarity on future options

Exit Interview

After the basic and advanced training is complete, freshman go through our exit interview process. Comprehensive two-on-one interview with our CDOs, which can test any of the technical concepts covered in training

SOPHOMORE TRAINING

Summer Training

Rising sophomores meet weekly over the summer to prepare for recruitment; cementing the skills developed over the school year. Topics span from networking, behavioral interviews, technicals, and market knowledge, ensuring each BAM member is well

Investment Banking Workshop

The culmination of our training program is securing members a spot in the UCLA Investment Banking Workshop and an event

MENTORSHIP

Mentor/Mentee Pairings

After coffee chatting, members, freshmen are paired with sophomores to gain more direct mentorship. Pairings are based on career interest, location preference, and personality fit to create lasting relationships and lineages. We also started a dedicated Mentor/ Mentee Reveal night, photos from our most recent one below!

STOCK PITCHES

INVESTMENTS UPDATE

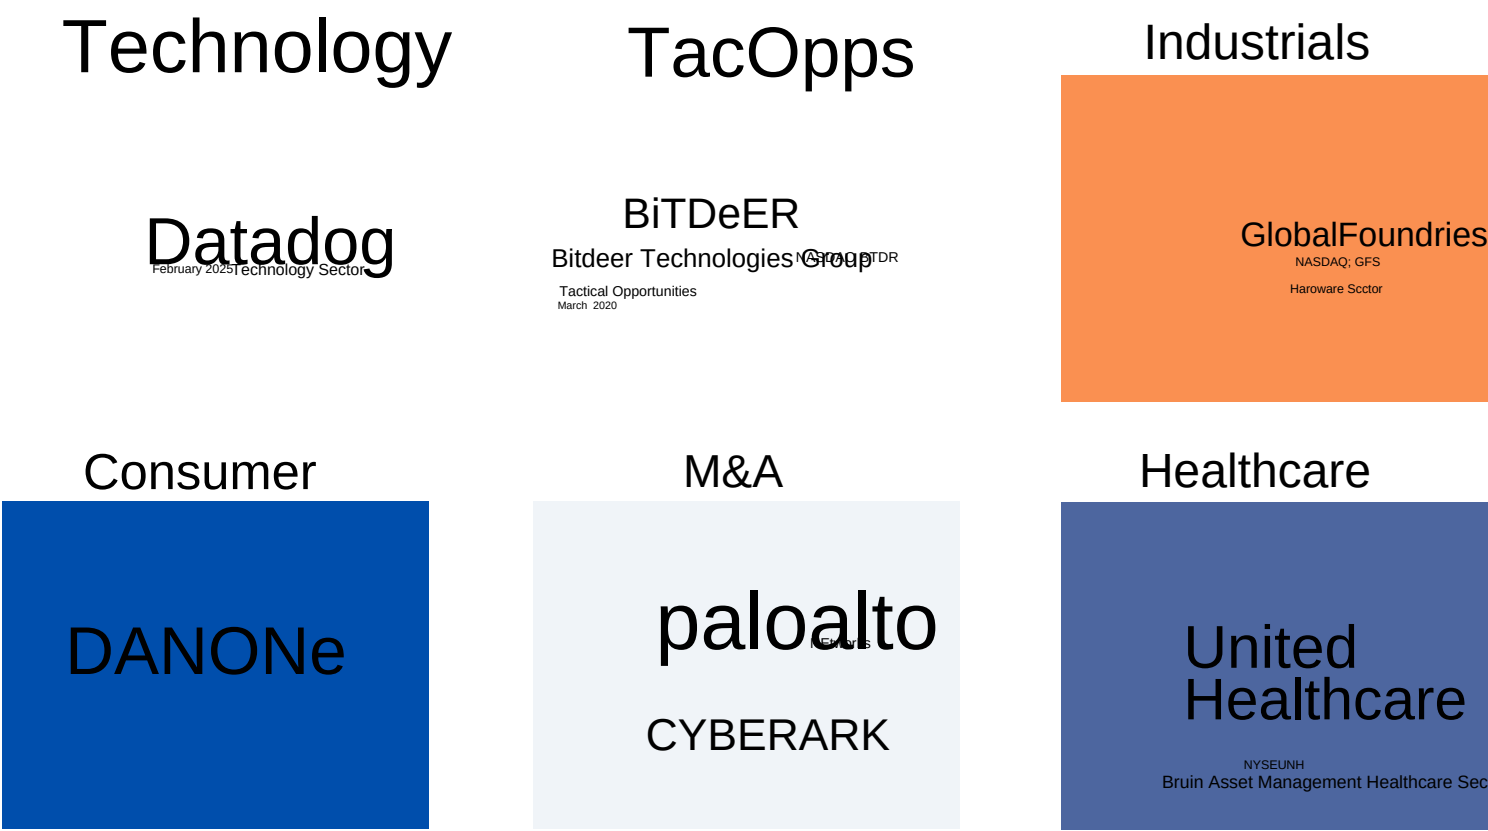

Note From Our CIO

Stock pitches at BAM have been going strong this quarter, and we've made a few meaningful upgrades to the process and raise the bar even further. Most notably, we've introduced a new policy requiring all pitches to be complete ahead of the scheduled pitch date. This earlier deadline allows for a structured review process, where teams receive detailed feedback on their thesis, valuation assumptions, and presentation clarity. The result has been noticeably sharper pitches, clearer narratives, and more confident presenters who lay out their ideas. Stock pitches continue to be the primary way members develop fundamental investing skills and learn how to think critically about businesses and investing:

Looking ahead to the spring, BAM is expanding the scope of its pitchwork beyond public equities. Each sector will be developing proposed M&A deal pitches, applying the same analytical rigor to acquisition rationale, synergies, valuation, and exit strategy. This initiative is designed to bridge investing advisory thinking, helping members, especially underclassmen, understand how investment frameworks transition into transaction-driven decisions. Overall, the evolution of the pitch process reflects our focus on continuous improvement and remains an integral part of BAM:

DEEP DIVE: SHARKNINJA

SharkNinja Executive Summary

Shark|NINJA

SharkNinja Inc. (NYSE: SN) is a disruptive consumer durables company that designs and manufactures a wide variety of home appliances and lifestyle products at accessible price points. Formed via the 2015 merger of Shark and Ninja by parent company Euro-Pro, the company operates a diverse dual-brand portfolio. The Shark segment includes cleaning apparatuses like robot vacuums and home/beauty tools such as air purifiers and face masks, while the Ninja segment dominates cooking, beverage preparation products like fryers and blenders. Headquartered in Needham, Massachusetts, the company generated $5.53B in revenue in FY2024, growing nearly 10% year-over-year, and operates across 35 countries portfolio spanning 38 product categories.

Our primary thesis for SN rested on three differentiated views that the market was failing to price in. First, SharkNinja's social media-driven demand engine consistently converting viral product content into units at 1.68% rate, while its DTC platform outperforms industry average conversion rate by nearly 10x. Second, the market continued to treat SharkNinja as a 'one-hit wonder' reliant on occasional viral moments, ignoring the structural repeatability of its 24/7 global product development pipeline, which produces 25 new launches per year. Pre-release influencer seeding to 15-20 tier-one creators also allowed the company to optimize pricing ahead of launch, most recently raising the Ninja Luxe Café and the Shark CryoGlow from $299 to $349 without any demand destruction. Against a consensus revenue growth estimate of 138.6% for FY2026, we projected 18.2%.

Second, SharkNinja's international expansion was being structurally underappreciated. The #1 vacuum and air fryer brand in the US posted triple-digit sales growth in Germany and France in FY2024, and international net sales grew 25.8% year-over-year in Q3 2024. The company still held less than 10% market share across major continental European and Latin American economies. Our EMEA market sizing projected approximately $2.48B in international revenue by FY2030 at ~16.3% CAGR, supported by a deliberate shift from a distributor model to a direct-to-retail model and the opening of a regional distribution hub targeting the UAE and Saudi Arabia.

Third, margin expansion underway but largely ignored by Street consensus, which assumed gross margins remaining essentially flat at ~49% through FY2030, while EBITDA growing only modestly to ~16%. We projected gross margins expanding to ~58% by FY2030, driven by three compounding tailwinds: shift toward the high-margin Beauty and Home Environment segment (growing at 67.3% year-over-year in FY2024, with ~70% gross margins versus ~45% for the core business); the Sourcing Services Agreement signed globally in July 2025, which eliminated a ~1.5% fee on COGS; and the ongoing manufacturing shift from China to Vietnam, unlocking labor costs on a permanent basis. Should margins reprojected, SharkNinja warranted an EV/EBITDA multiple of 16x-18x, in line with high-margin peers like Breville, versus the 12x at which it traded at time of pitch.

Management is actively executing catalysts including the rollout of modernized DTC platforms across EMEA and LATAM, as well as leveraging FI co-branding in early 2026. With consistent double-digit growth in TAM, our blended valuation methodology derived an implied share price of $120, representing approximately 35% upside to the then-current price of $107. As of early March 2026, the stock has ascended, trading above the $120 mark.
